THE TORPEDO BOATS

Daily Expected at Esquimalt for Defence Purposes.

Odd Appearance of the Swift and the Sure—A Voyage in Steel Tubes.

While on its way to this port from Coquimbo, the Satellite having in charge the torpedo boats, the Swift and Sure, ran into the San Francisco bay last Thursday evening. A reporter of the Chronicle boarded them on Friday and gave the readers of that journal a description of these vessels from which we make the following extracts:

The voyage promised to be not only a novel one but likewise one of danger—two recommendations to the average Jack. Twenty-two volunteers were speedily secured for the voyage from Valparaiso. The Hon. A. E. Bethel, who commands the Swift, and Lieutenant Clark, who commands the Sure, had already arrived, and when the crews, eleven for each boat reported for duty the long trip to Victoria, or more accurately to Esquimalt, was begun without any consort.

WHAT THEY LOOK LIKE.

A close view of one of the torpedo-boats is necessary to understand what a long ocean voyage on one of them means. They look about as much calculated to carry a crew to sea as does a redwood pile, and the average landsman would probably prefer to take his chance on the pile. A description of one answers for both, as they are exact counterparts to the last rivet, yet, with that inevitable law of perversity of marine architecture which makes it impossible to foretell the speed of a ship, no matter what her model, the Swift steams two and a half knots an hour faster than the Sure, although there is apparently nothing to distinguish them apart except their names. The boats are 102 feet long, 8 feet beam, and 10 feet hold amidships, and taper to points at each end. They are, in short, steel tubes, sharpened and closed at each end, carrying powerful compound engines, which are as large as the little craft can carry. Like the Strasburg geese and their livers, if the engines were taken out of these wonderful little crafts they would collapse into mere shrunken shells. The speed trial record of the Swift is 21½ knots per hour; of the Sure, 19 knots. When they are under full headway the sterns of the boats are entirely buried under water and the bows are almost out of water. As they lie at anchor the sterns draw six feet, although the screw-wheel is two feet below the line of the keel. The arrangement of the screw is also unusual, in being placed astern of the rudder instead of between the rudder and hull, as in other screw steamers. The boats have "turtle" backs, the surface of which, as seen at a distance, is broken by two short smoke-stacks, a single short spar, well forward, and a ventilator pipe. The hulls, only four feet out of water, are painted a dull lead color above the water line and red beneath, and altogether look as much unlike a terrible engine of destruction as it is possible to imagine a boat to be made to look.

AN INSIDE VIEW.

When standing on the deck—which, in fact, is no deck, properly speaking, but a fine foot-path, protected on either side by a wire line—the impression is that one is doing a tight-rope act upon the water. The first opening forward of the stern, which is made in the cigar-shaped top, is to the companion-way leading to the cabin. The companion-way, like every other opening for ingress or egress, is supplied with a hinged cover, of steel, so that when all are closed it would appear to be a matter of entire indifference whether the boat was running on her keel or her deck. The cabin, which is occupied by the commander and engineer, is about ten feet long, has a narrow berth on each side and a narrower table in the center. Forward of the cabin is an extra coal-bunker, where about nine tons can be stored. This bunker was originally intended to be part of the cabin, and a small one-ton bunker was the only storage for coal; but when the long voyage of thousands of miles was determined upon, where coaling stations were sometimes 700 miles apart, more coal storage room was needed, and the cabin was shorn of its vista. Forward of this bunker is the engine-room. In that the powerful little upright, compound engine, which turned the screw-wheel 450 revolutions a minute, is closely packed, with another little engine which runs a fan for ventilation and for artificial draught for the boilers. Next forward along the tube is the single boiler and fire-box, and next to those the small coal bunker. Forward of that is a narrow space, with the usual scuttle-like opening, for cleaning the boilers, and forward of that again is the forecastle and steering room. The wheelsman stands up in the forecastle, a bowl-like cap of steel, bulging up from the deck, giving space for the head. Forward of the forecastle is an air-tight compartment, running clear forward to the ram, and the whole bow of the craf tcould be carried away without danger from water to the rest of the boat. The ram, a steel "hem" of the two sides of the boat, is only intended as a means of attack against other torpedo boats. The boats left Coquimbo, Chile, May 25, and steamed up the coast, unescorted as far as Esmeralda bay, stopping several times for coal. They reached Callao on the 3d of June, and had to remain there four days for repairs to the Sure. After having traveled about 2000 miles a one, they were escorted by Her Majesty's ship Pelican from Esmeralda bay to La Union, where the Satellite met them and escorted them to this city, and will continue as escort to Victoria.

A Widow's Distress.

An Ottawa special says: A scene occurred in the corridor of the Commons this evening while the House was in session. Mrs. McGinnis, whose husband was killed on the Inter-Colonial railway some years ago, and, in furtherance whose claims for compensation Sir Charles Tupper took interest so warm that it became a matter of comment in the press, appeared at the main entrance of the chamber and screamed: "Oh, the Inter-Colonial railway killed my husband, give him back to me." The sergeant-at-arms caught her as she rushed on the floor of the chamber and removed her from the precincts of the House.

By order of the minister of militia the Alberta field force, of which Maj. Gen. Strange was in command, has been disbanded as such, and Gen. Strange is relieved. He has been ordered to prepare a full report of all the raps and mishaps of the Calgary column.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

[While the columns of THE TIMES are open for the discussion of questions of public interest, to correspondents, it must be understood that it does not necessarily endorse, nor coincide with the sentiments expressed by writers in this column.]

Our School Teachers Again.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR,—Of the school teachers of British Columbia generally I have too high an opinion to suppose that "G. T." occupies any conspicuous or representative place in their ranks, except by usurpation. Even at the cost of giving him a temporary notoriety which his merits have hitherto failed to achieve for him, I have to offer a few words in reply to his letter in your issue of the 20th inst. It would puzzle any one to discover the slightest criticism of a single proposition contained in my former communication. The real question under consideration seems to have quite escaped his notice. He wastes his own time writing, and the time of others reading, a labored correction of what was a mere slip of the compositor, in over-looking the capital H (as I had written it, in the pronoun applied to the Deity. What a puerile proceeding! What an inglorious effort at the discussion of my plea for our educational system being the vehicle of sound morality to the rising generation! I did not state that a atheist is necessarily immoral. "G. T." does not appear to understand the difference. Perhaps the dullest scholar in his school can enlighten him. If atheism has a code of sound morality will "G. T." print such code and disprove my proposition. I assert that an atheist is only moral to the extent that he observes the precepts of morality laid down in the bible—a book he discredits. If he departs from these precepts he is immoral. Expediency may restrain him, but that will not pass current for principle. Again, and yet again, I declare that he who ignores the only standard of pure morality, as found in Divine Revelation, an intellectual deformity and a moral leper. Such an one should never teach our children and blight their lives by his pestilential breath. Godless he may be content to exist, but it were bitterly cruel that the children of Christian parents should be compelled to imperil their highest happiness by bringing them into forcible contact with such a spiritual wrecker. Our citizens owe it to themselves that these dangers be averted, and I doubt not they will be, as the situation is realized. If anything that I have written upon this to me at least, very important subject has given offence to the school teachers of British Columbia, no one will regret it more sincerely than I do myself. I yield to no man in the high opinion which I entertain for their noble profession, and my intercourse with many of them personally has always been of the most pleasing character. In exposing the few blatant infidels, who have by some means found their way into their ranks, and who are at the present moment disgracing their honorable profession, I thought I was doing them an act of kindness. Such was my intention at least. Hoping that the next time the Nanaimo mountain of literary conceit "labors" a larger "mouse" will be produced, I remain, yours &c.

SPECTATOR.

Victoria, B. C., July 22nd, 1885.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

Rushing Business During the Expiring Days of the Session.

In the Commons on Monday 13th, Sir John Macdonald said that it would be impossible to introduce during the present session of the legislature a bill necessary to provide for the enforcement of the Scott act.

Hon. Mr. Bowell admitted that the factories at Magog, Western, St. Croix and Brantford were using imported machinery, the duty on which had not been paid.

Mr. Forbes asked if it was the intention of the government, during the free fishing arrangements allowed American fishermen, to pay to the fishermen of the Dominion a bonus equivalent to the duties paid on fish shipped to the United States by Canadian shippers.

Mr. McLellan said that no such decision had been arrived at, but the whole fishery question had yet to be considered.

Mr. Mills asked whether the government intended to invite parliament to ask for imperial legislation in the matter of the Ontario boundary at this session. Sir John Macdonald said there was no difficulty about the boundary line between Ontario and Manitoba, but the government had yet to consider what was the northern boundary of Quebec. He proposed to confer with the governments of Quebec, Ontario and Manitoba and ask for imperial legislation on the whole question.

On motion to go into committee of supply, Mr. Weldon rose to charge the government with neglect, delay and mismanagement in relation to the fishery question. After the expiration of the Washington treaty the government had delayed action until it was completely at the mercy of the Americans, and a new and disadvantageous arrangement had been made, not on the ground of aiding Canadian fishermen, but that it would save American fishermen from inconvenience. While Canada undertook to protect American fishermen in her waters, the United States did not offer any protection to Canadians fishing in American waters. No treaty or other arrangement was necessary to enable American vessels to buy bait, ice or other supplies from Canadian merchants, so that Canada was getting nothing whatever for the use of her fisheries. The whole arrangement was of a very one-sided character. Americans were not likely to give anything for what they now enjoyed.

Sir John Macdonald denied that the government had been guilty of neglect or delay. Had negotiations been opened in 1883 or 1884, the government would have courted a repulse. The United States government could not be expected to change its whole policy at the request of Canadians. He deprecated the course of Mr. Weldon in bringing on a discussion of the subject now. Reciprocity was not essential to Canadian prosperity. Canada had done without it from 1865 to 1871, and could do without it again. The government has already done a great deal for the fishermen of the maritime provinces. The catch of fish by Canadian fishermen was not restricted by the use of Canadian waters by Americans.

Mr. Mitchell contradicted Sir John's statement that the fisheries were not being injured by Americans. Their system of fishing if continued, would ultimately destroy the fisheries altogether. After some remarks by Mr. Vail the matter was dropped.

FROM THE INTERIOR.

The Ambitious City of Farwell—Present and Future.

Mr. D. M. Eberts, barrister, arrived home yesterday after a three weeks professional visit to the interior, having spent nine days at Farwell. That ambitious city of the mountains now contains about five hundred people, the rough element predominating. Large numbers of the off-scouring of the railroad—parasites who live by their wits—have flocked thither, and at present Farwell is passing through the usual experience of a new mining and railroad town. Many new buildings are being erected, and as there is no question that the place must ultimately be a general distributing point for the rich mineral districts of Kootenay and Big Bend, to the south and north, great confidence is felt in its future. In course of time, ex the construction of the railway nears the end, and access is more easy, a more desirable class of citizens will take possession and devote their energies to developing of the district. In the mining districts, the prospectors are full of hopes and great expectations, and many of them have good reason for the faith that is in them. The galena ledge on the Illecillewat, known as the Moberly, was some time ago located and recorded by a Mr. Brown, who was aided in his search for the long lost mine by the original discoverer's notes. On the same stream, a miner known by the sobriquet of "Hot-water Jimmy," to distinguish him probably from a "coldwater" partner of the same name, has located a silver mine that gives rich promise. Prospectors from Kootenay speak very encouragingly of that country. Many are going into the Big Bend district, and among others Capt. Allen, lately of the mounted police and Alex. McLennan. A trail is much needed, as the difficulties of traveling are so great as to deter many from facing the dangers and hardships of the trip. On Scotch Creek, near Shuswap Lake, is being tested with encouraging prospects. One of those periodical wind storms that occasionally visit the mountain valleys, swept over Farwell recently. The air was literally filled with flying dust, mixed with a bright substance not unlike mica, resembling a Manitoba blizzard. While it continued it was impossible to see across the street, and the dust found its way into every opening, into the eyes and down the throats of the people in their houses. A bush fire, which broke out all around, did considerable damage across the river from Farwell, consuming about 200,000 feet of lumber intended for the trestle work on the approach to the railway bridge. For a time Mr. Wright's house was in danger, but fortunately the flames did not reach it. Notwithstanding the character of the inhabitants, lawlessness, outside of drunkenness and an occasional fight, does not prevail to any great extent.

THE IMMENSE RESOURCES

A QUARTZ LEDGE

THE VISIT OF THE CHIEF JUSTICE

has had a wholesome effect. His fame as an administrator of criminal law had preceded him, and the favorable impression created will have a most beneficial effect in the future. Mr. Todd's administration of the law had spread terror among the illicit whiskey dealers, and his zealousness in the performance of his duties was generally commended by those whose opinion's were unprejudiced. The steamer on the Columbia is making regular trips, but only carries C. P. R. freight. A large amount of liquor finds its way into the province up the river, and the traffic in the contraband stuff seems to be as large as ever, and as "two bits" is the modest price for a glass of diluted benzine, the profits are large and very remunerative to the enterprising vendors. The scenery, especially in the neighborhood of Eagle Pass is grand beyond description. In time, and not far distant either, this will be one of the most as on no other railway crossing the Rockies does nature present herself in such rugged grandeur. Tourists from the heat-oppressed cities of the east will come in ever increasing numbers and as our province becomes better known and appreciated as a health and pleasure resort, it will be the most favored resort of the fashionable and the grand tour of the continent will be incomplete without a trip across the Cascades, Selkirks and Rockies in British Columbia.

POPULAR TRIPS ON THE CONTINENT,

Startling Defalcations.

A Montreal dispatch says:—It is believed that the redemption of the Canadian loan, which has just been arranged by Sir Leonard Tilley in London, will bring to light some startling revelations as to the manner in which considerable numbers of these bonds have been fraudulently placed on the market by government employees. Last year a bond of the 1860 issue for £1000 was negotiated in London, England, after it had been stolen from the government vaults by a trusted employee, since dead, who forged the signature of the government official authorized to sign it. It has now been discovered that a number of these bonds have disappeared from the government vaults, and there is little doubt that they are in circulation and will come in for redemption within the next few months. It has further leaked out that in the recent investigation into the management of the Finance Department, a deficit of $12,000 was discovered in the accounts of a trusted official. Until recently bonds to the value of over $1,000,000, all signed ready for issue, are said to have been in a vault to which every officer of the department had access, without any check upon him. As a result of the defalcation in the Receiver-General's office at Halifax last year, the government has now to make good $240,000, to the Bank of Montreal, which had made advances to the dishonest officials.

The Murder Near Tacoma.

An inquest was held on the body of James McMillan, who was shot and killed on Connells prairie, Pierce county, on last Friday. A post mortem examination revealed a bullet wound in the thigh and another at base of skull, where the ball which caused death, and which weighed 130 grains, entered. The verdict was to the effect that deceased came to his death from a pistol wound, the shot being delivered from a revolver in the hands of Wm. M. White, Thomas White, son of the murderer, was declared an accessory before the act. The cause of the trouble was the possession of a ranch, which both claimed. The murder seems to have been a cold-blooded one.

THE WIDE WORLD.

Gen. Middleton's Official Report.

OTTAWA, July 14.—In his official report of the Fish Creek fight Gen. Middleton says that Gabriel Dumont had special designs on him. He says:

"On recrossing to the left flank I received a bullet through my fur cap from one of the men in the rifle pits, who had made several attempts to hit me before, and whom I have reason to believe was Gabriel Dumont himself, and who a few minutes after, when I was obliged to recross with my A. D. C., Capt. Wise, shot from the same place Capt. Wise's horse." The report expresses admiration of the remarkable promptness with which the Tenth Royals were rushed across the Saskatchewan to his aid under great difficulties, and also refers to the valuable services of Captains Haig and Wise, Lieut. Doucet, and others. It continues:

"I cannot conclude without mentioning a little bugler of the 90th regiment named William Buchanan, who made himself particularly useful in carrying ammunition to the right front when the fire was very hot; this he did with peculiar nonchalance, walking calmly about crying: 'Now, boys, who's for cartridges?' &c.

The official list of killed and wounded shows that the number of volunteers actually engaged in the fight was 350, of whom 10 were killed or afterwards died, and 40 more wounded. As to the rebels' numbers and losses, the following is Middleton's statement under a later date:

P. S.—May 13—I find from papers captured at Batoche yesterday that the number of the rebels at Fish creek was 280, under Gabriel Dumont; that they had intended to let me entered the ravine or crest and then destroy us, taking me prisoner and holding me as a hostage to assist them in making terms with the government at Ottawa. Their scheme was defeated by my having my scouts so far in advance, which obliged them to fire on them and thus disclose their position. I also find now that the rebels had eleven killed or died of wounds, and eighteen wounded at Fish creek. (Signed)

FRED. MIDDLETON.

Canadian Representation.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 15.—On motion to go into supply this evening, Cameron (opposition) called attention to the subject of representation of the territories. As there was doubt whether the Canadian Parliament has power to give representation to the territories without first dividing them into provinces, he moved a resolution declaring that, under the circumstances, the imperial authorities should be asked to give the Canadian Parliament authority to provide for representation of the Northwest territories. After a long discussion, the motion was voted down.

Horrible Cases Brought to Light.

LONDON, July 20.—Since the exposures of the Pall Mall Gazette many horrible cases are brought to the attention of the authorities. In many of these cases the victims and their friends have been afraid to prosecute until now, when the taking up of the crusade by the most powerful dignitaries of the church bids them hope that justice may at last be done, even against rich and titled libertines. Such a case was brought in the Bow street court yesterday. The complainant, a widow of good social position, and undoubted respectability came to demand a warrant for the arrest of a well known baronet, whom she charged with having abducted and ruined her daughter four years ago, when the girl was only 12 years old. She swore that the baronet had tracked the child daily, and finally entrapped her into a carriage, took her to a secluded house in the suburbs, which he kept for such occasions, and kept her a close prisoner for months. The baronet's name was withheld by the justice, but he issued a warrant.

POLICE COURT.

(Before Edwin Johnson, Esq., S. M.)

WON'T DO IT ANY MORE.

James Turner, drunk and disorderly, pleaded guilty. He said he had only taken two or three drinks, and could not understand how he got so drunk. It was the first time he had appeared in a police court and it would be the last. Fined $5.

FORGERY.

Henry L. Emory, forgery. Geo. Cruikshank, ledger keeper in the Bank of British Columbia, deposed that the two checks were presented at the bank by Mr. McIntyre, of the Gordon hotel, and Mr. Chas. Pagden. Mr. McIntyre testified that prisoner had given him one of the checks in payment of an account for fifty cents, and that he returned $9.50; when he presented it at the bank it was not paid. This concluded the evidence for the prosecution, and none being offered for the defence, prisoner was committed for trial at the next assizes.

BLACKMAILING.

Ma Kee, alias Ma Joey Chung, charged with attempting to distort money from Ah Ling. Remanded until 3 o'clock.

Coming to Victoria.

The Queen of the Pacific, now on the way from San Francisco, carries the following passengers for this port:—H Croft and wife, J H Williams, W W Randall and wife, Mr. Gillette and wife; Mr. Haslam, wife and daughter, Miss Pitts, Miss Jackson, Miss Talbot, Mr Warren, Mr Barron, Mr Mowry, Mr Bolder, Mr Kennedy, Mr Long, Mr Tannehill and wife, C McLean and wife, C Stickney and wife, Col Batchelor, George Anderson, F W Ellenburg and wife, Noah Shakespeare and wife, John Carey, Oy Fung, Miss G S Waitt, M W Waitt, C J Silberly, Mrs R Woodcons, Miss Jessie Morrison, Mrs L G Belond, B Morrison, Sing Kee and wife, W C Lloyd, Delia Smith, T Spears, John Murray, E C Marilarg.

A Delightful Trip.

The C. P. N. Co. advertise a delightful trip. On the 1st of August, inst., the Princess Louise will leave Victoria for a voyage up the coast and around Queen Charlotte and Vancouver Islands, touching at points of interest on the way. At least forty passengers are wanted, and not more than fifty will be taken. The trip is acknowledged by those who have made it to be superior to anything of the kind on this continent, there being nothing on the St. Lawrence, Ottawa or Hudson, or among the great lakes to equal in rugged grandeur or placid beauty the varied views obtained on the British Columbia coast. There should be no difficulty in obtaining the desired number, and those who are anxious to go, should apply early to secure accommodation.

Families requiring sugar for preserving fruits, &c., can obtain it at wholesale prices at FELL & Co.'s, Fort street.

RIVAL TRANS-CONTINENTAL LINES.

As announced a few day since the British bark Isabel is shortly expected at Tacoma with a cargo of teas direct from Yokahama, to pass over the Northern Pacific railway, consigned to St. Paul, Chicago and other western wholesale centres. Referring to the matter the St. Paul Pioneer Press says that it is an event of vast importance in the history of the Northern Pacific railway. It is well-known that the trans-continental lines centering in San Francisco secured a controlling interest in the Pacific steamship line at a very heavy outlay. Realizing the fact that steam could not successfully compete with sailing vessels the Northern Pacific Railway Company shrewdly substituted sail for steam, a scheme which took the San Francisco magnates completely by surprise. Hitherto the Pacific Mail steamships had been carrying teas to San Francisco at a rate of three or four dollars per hundred. The Northern Pacific advertised a rate at Yokohama of $2.25. But these reduced rates did not attract a cargo. When it was discovered that the agents of the Pacific Mail had cut under them, and even offering to take cargoes at the rate of $1.75 per hundred, the Northern Pacific people promptly met these figures, and the good ship Isabel, chartered for the purpose, was soon steering for Tacoma with a full cargo of teas. The first immediate effect of this modest entry of the Northern Pacific into the field of the China trade has been to reduce freight rates from Yokohama to New York or intermediate points $10 a ton, and that the Union Pacific is now compelled to lay down teas in St. Paul at the same low rates as the Northern Pacific. The policy thus initiated will be continued, and sailing vessels will be employed by the Northern Pacific in the China trade until such time as it is ready for its appropriate equipment of steamships. But that will probably not be until it has completed its line over the Cascade mountains to Puget Sound, and then it may be that the Canadian Pacific and Northern Pacific may unite their forces in the establishment of a steamship line for the joint use and benefit of both railways. The Pioneer Press claims that the Northern Pacific route to China has now a great advantage in distance, and when its Cascade division is completed will have a still greater advantage over the Union Pacific. From Hongkong to New York or Liverpool it is over five hundred miles shorter by the present line of the Northern Pacific via Tacoma, than by the Union Pacific, and by the Cascade division it will be nearly six hundred and thirty miles shorter. Of course the advantage is vastly greater over the route by sea and the Suez canal. For the tea trade the Northern Pacific enjoys exceptional advantages, one of the most important of which is the high northern latitude of its railway line and of its route across the ocean. The transit of teas through a temperate climate is said to be necessary to the preservation of their quality, which is liable to serious impairment by transportation through tropical latitudes. It is now very evident that not only the Union and Central Pacific, but likewise the Pacific Mail Steamship Line is not to be allowed to enjoy the monopoly of the business with China and Japan. They have naturally looked forward to the time when their northern rivals, the Northern and Canadian Pacific, would also be equipped with steamship lines to divide with them such of the trade of Oriental Asia as seeks Amercia or the transcontinental routes over this continent.

The fact that a special order of the treasury department was necessary in order that the cargo of the Isabel might be bonded through to St. Paul is a curiously sarcastic commentary on the laggardness of congressional legislation on subjects of national concern. Under the present laws San Francisco, the terminus of the Central Pacific, is the only port of entry on the Pacific coast. A bill was introduced in the last session of congress making the Pacific terminus of the Northern Pacific also a port of entry. But it was suffocated under the overwhelming weight of pending bills, aided, no doubt, by the obstacles interposed by rival interests. It is a measure of great importance to the entire Northwest and to the entire country, as has been already evidenced by the large reduction in freight rates from China recently, and from the establishment of even the most moderate competition with the San Francisco route, and should unite the entire country, and more especially the Northwestern states and the British possessions, in its support.

THE DOMINION CAPITAL.

The Debate on the Northwest Rebellion—Tariff Changes—Death of Col. Dennis—Miscellaneous.

[From Our Own Correspondent.]

OTTAWA, July 11.

The present session of the House of Commons, which has lasted now for about five and a half months, at last appears to be drawing to a close, and it is likely that another week will witness the closing scenes. The House is sitting to-day in order to rush through the work. The most important debate in the House this week has been that on the Northwest rebellion. The leader of the opposition, the HON. MR. BLAKE, taking advantage of the motion to go into Committee of Ways and Means to move his amendment in reference to the government's Northwest policy. MR. BLAKE'S speech occupied upwards of six hours in delivery. Beginning with the administration of the Northwest, as the MACKENZIE government left it under LIEUT.-GOVERNOR LAIRD, he said that the record was one continuous cry from the half-breeds for the redress of their grievances. The Manitoba half-breeds, by the settlement of 1870, had received scrip and land in satisfaction of their claims through the Indian title, and their brethren in the Territories asked for like treatment. Petition after petition was sent to the Northwest Council, and by that body forwarded to the Dominion government, accompanied by representations urging an early solution of the difficulty and pointing out the danger of delay. The years passed by, nothing was done, the irritation increased, and the situation became more and more complicated. Other grievances arose. While government surveyors were engaged all over the country laying out new lands, the old settlements along the Saskatchewan were left without proper surveys and much additional discontent and strife was caused thereby. Riel visited the country in 1882, mutterings of open resistance began to be heard, which culminated in the open rebellion of a few months ago. Without attempting to justify the rebellion, Mr. Blake tried to show that government was guilty of neglect, incompetence and mismanagement in the conduct of its Northwest affairs, and that it failed to heed the repeated warnings that were given, and he closed with an amendment to that effect. Mr. Blake's speech was a remarkably able effort, although there were some who thought it was too long for Parliament.

SIR JOHN MACDONALD characterized the speech of the leader of the opposition as one long apology for murder and rebellion, and indirectly charged the opposition and their friends, the white agitators in the west, with having been the cause of the whole trouble. He justified the government's delay in granting patents to the half-breeds on the ground that ARCHBISHOP TACHE recommended that the title should be withheld until the land had been held by at least three generations of the half-breeds. The Northwest council, too, and ARCHBISHOP MCLEAN had advised that patents should be withheld for ten years, but the government, he argued, had more confidence in the half-breed than his own council and archbishop had, for it offered homesteads and pre-emptions to half-breeds on the same conditions as those to whites, namely, a clear deed at the end of three years' residence and cultivation. The Premier spoke with remarkable vigor for a man of his years. These two speeches concluded Monday's sitting. On Tuesday the debate was continued by MESSRS. LAURIER, GIROUARD and CAMERON (Huron), and on Wednesday by MESSRS. CAMERON (Huron), who had not concluded on the previous day, MACINTOSH, MILLS and ROYAL, when the vote was taken, the amendment being defeated on a strict party vote of 48 to 105.

THE TARIFF.

The most of Thursday's sitting was devoted to considering in committee of ways and means, resolutions proposed by HON. MR. BOWELL, Minister of Customs, and involving several important tariff changes. The resolutions propose to make the duty on all refined sugars in future one cent per pound and 35 per cent ad valorem, without any reference at all to grade, color or saccharine strength. The excise duty on spirits made from corn, is to be raised from $1 to $1.30; on malt spirits from $1.02 to $1.32, and on spirits from molasses from $1.03 to $1.33 per gallon. The customs duty now paid on gin, rum, whiskey and other spirits of that kind of $1.32½ is to be raised to $1.75, and the present duty of $1.45 on brandy is to be raised to $2 per gallon. The excise duty on foreign leaf tobacco, which before 1873 was 20 cents per pound, and was then reduced to 12 cents, is to be restored to 20 cents. Domestic leaf tobacco is to be raised from two to five cents. The customs duty on tobacco snuff, which is now 20 cents per pound, is to be increased to 30 cents. Under the old tariff the customs duty upon imported tobacco was 15 per cent. At present it is 20 per cent, and it is proposed to increase it to 30 per cent. The government claim that this will give a better protection to Canadian manufacturers than they now enjoy. Woolen rags are to remain on the free list. After a long discussion the resolutions were reported.

This afternoon, says a recent cablegram, there was an occurrence in the House of Lords possessing great interest to Hebrews throughout the world, and destined to become historical. Lord Rothschild took the peerage oath, escorted by the Earl of Rosebery — husband of Hannah Rothschild, daughter of the late Baron Mayer—and by Lord Carrington—son of that Lord Carrington who, during ten years of contention, from 1848 to 1858, voted against the bill admitting Lord Rothschild's father, Baron Lionel, to the House of Commons. Several peers who fought in the latter period against Tory bigotry were present to see the revenge that the whirligig of time had brought. In the gallery were the proud and happy faces of Lady Rosebery, Lady Rothschild, Lady Anthony de Rothschild, Miss Alice de Rothschild, Baron Ferdinand de Rothschild and Mr. Alfred de Rothschild, who watched the proceedings. The oath was taken with great solemnity, on a Hebrew copy of the Pentateuch, held by Deputy Clerk Ralph Disraeli, brother of the late Earl of Beaconsfield, while Lord Rothschild stood with his head covered. Then, as the first Hebrew peer took his seat on the first opposition bench, below the gangway, all his colleagues cheered. Doubtless many recal'ed how, in the year 1290, from London all Jews were driven into foreign exile, pursued by the execrations of the rabble, and leaving in the hands of the crown all their property.

THE government, previous to adjournment, abandoned the bill to sanction and confirm the present provisional arrangement with the ALLAN'S, of Montreal, for the ocean mail service. The arrangement now in force is to be continued one year longer. In the meantime the company will make arrangements in Scotland to add new steamers to the line, of additional strength and power and improved sailing qualities. We are pleased to learn that its owners are determined to make the ALLAN LINE second to none that cross the Atlantic. The company have already added to it some splendid ships, and those to be built will, no doubt, be superior to even the best of them. Canadians look with pride on their pioneer steamship line, and will be greatly gratified to see it rank second to none on this continent.

THE writ for the vacancy in the representation of the city of St. John, N. B., has been issued. The candidates are said to be, on the Conservative side, MR. CHARLES A. EVERITT, and on the Liberal side, MR. JOHN V. ELLIS.

SILENT VISITORS.

[Helen T. Clarke in Philadelphia Call.]

Gray robed and silent-footed do they come,
Each with her priceless gift;
One with still brow and pale, sweet hands that lift
Imperishable garlands in the gloom.

"These, for remembrance," and a mist of tears
O'ercomes my longing eyes,
As one to whom from sudden veiling skies,
Dimly his loved familiar star appears.

I look again, and one with brilliant gaze
Holds forth a jeweled crown,
Achievement and the hope of fair renown,
And peaceful sunset to youth's stormy days.

And one—the last—with earnest, thoughtful mien,
Turns in her slender hands
An hour-glass with its golden, dropping sands,
And thrills me strangely with her look serene.

Memory and Hope and Present Duty—all
Voiceless, yet eloquent!
As angels came of old to Abraham's tent,
Like dew your silent visitations fall!

UNABLE TO WRITE.

Some of the Queer Customers Telegraph Operators Have to Accommodate.

[Philadelphia Times.]

"Would you mind writing this message for me?" asked a quite respectable-looking young woman of the receiving operator at a district telegraph station the other afternoon. "I cannot write with my gloves on."

"Certainly, miss, with pleasure," was the polite reply, and the official proceeded to take down from dictation a message of some length.

"Are you often requested to do that?" he was asked, when the message was written and the lady gone.

"Oh, yes. She probably couldn't write at all, or so badly she was ashamed to let me see her calligraphy. It is quite a common thing for people, both men and women, to ask us to do their writing for them. I guess anyone would be astonished to find out how many people there are who are hardly able to spell their own name, much less write a legible letter or telegraphic message. These are principally English people of the working classes, who have only been in this country a short time. Nearly all born Americans can write. They tell me that in England the laboring people are very seldom able to read and write, especially in the mining and manufacturing districts.

"It is not an uncommon occurrence for people to come in and ask us to make up their letters for them. They tell us the substance of what they want to say and get us to put it in shape for them. They never let on they can't write or read, but it's easy to see that. Some of the excuses they make are very funny. They will pretend they are foreigners and can't write English, or they have sprained their wrist, or have their gloves on, or can't write with our pens, and we have to look serious, while all the time we see through their dodges perfectly. Then there is the kind who don't want to have their handwriting recognized—young men who are sending love letters to girls unknown to their parents, and young girls who wish to keep appointments with young men that they would be wiser to avoid."

"Do you always accommodate them?"

"Oh, yes, unless we are very much pushed, and in that case we make them wait until we have time to attend to them. It doesn't do to lose a message you know."

An Ashantee Gentleman.

[Chronicles of No Man's Land.]

The Ashantee gentleman has neither a flat nose, nor thick lips, nor ebony skin. To take Bossionoga as a specimen, he is not darker than many Spaniards, has features of the European cast, and an eye that protrudes in the manner admired by French people, and called a fleur de tete. His dress, even when a prisoner, as I saw him, is a miracle of taste, unequaled since the Roman toga vanished. One single piece of "cloth" it is, a cotton print, home spun and home dyed. Your native gentleman, whether from east or west, would not condescend to wear Manchester stuffs, and he is conspicuously right. To see Bossonoga was to see a picture of antique grace. It was a marvel how he kept so clean that sheet of cotton, adorned with blue arabesques and flowers on a white ground. Nothing else did he wear by day except the "breech-clout," fringed with silk, the ends of which fell below his knees. At night he rolled it round him, and slept, but the stiffening never went out of it, and its folds were always statuesque. He looked a swell, every inch, bright and wholesome, and courteous, though tied by his wrist, and trudging barefoot through the mud.

When permitted the use of a carriage hammock (instead of walking chained to a common soldier) Bossonoga stepped into his conveyance with a courteous bow toward the marine; through my interpreter he expressed regret that circumstances over which he had no control forbade him to reward Private Smith for his "uniform consideration," etc. The face of that gallant soldier when he thoroughly mastered this parting shaft of politeness, did one good to see. "Why—who!" he said; "this nigger—he—oh, blow it!" Words would not come to him fitting to describe his sentiments. I saw him again two days after, with his remaining captives still in tow. Private Smith had changed into a thoughtful man; the sublimity of Ashantee manners had overpowered him.

Precept vs. Practice.

[Texas Siftings.]

A literary lady, who writes for the magazine, met a friend on the streets of Galveston.

"You seem to be in high spirits. Heard some good news? Going to get married?" asked the friend.

"Oh, no, its better than that. I've just got a letter from the editor of The Ladies' Magazine inclosing a check for $50 in payment of my article on economy in dress, and I am going right now to buy me a new bronzed silk velvet dress."

Apples and Oranges.

[Cor. New York Journal of Commerce.]

The idea that fortunes are to be made in Florida without sweat of the brow is the fiction of land speculators. An orange grove in Florida is not worth a cent more than an apple orchard in New England until its owner has put into it years of hard work, much money, and much impatient waiting. He thinks it could be demonstrated that a good apple orchard pays a larger bitarnt than the best orange grove in Florida.

HOW TO KEEP YOUNG.

HOW THE MIND CAN KEEP THE BODY FROM GROWING OLD.

The Rust That Wears Both Body and Soul—How Thought Can Build New Physical Structures—The Wise Man of the Future.

[Special Correspondence.]

BOSTON, April 30.—Healthy body, healthy mind. Old adage, convertible terms—healthy mind, healthy body. More yet, keep the mind young and fresh and you keep the body ditto. Worried minds, racked minds, fretted minds, sour, cross, ugly, surly, peevish, sad, melancholic minds wear a young body into an old one ten, twenty, thirty years ere its time.

Two-thirds of our old age, so-called, comes of rust, dead rust, treadmill lives, living in ruts, learning nothing new, declaring we're too old to learn.

Young man marries at twenty-three. Young woman ditto. "Settle down." Give up recreation, boats, balls, dancing, croquet, etc. Turn five-sixths of their lives into business and housekeeping.

Result at thirty-five: Young man's rut is worn too deep for him to crawl out of. Thinks he's seen about all there is in life to live for. Has settled down into eating, sleeping and pottering from store to house and house to store. Begins to "lay up" for old age. Sees himself in thought an old man. Result, he does grow old, acts old, thinks old, not knowing that thoughts are live things built out of highly rarefied matter, that mind is at workand in existence in every atom of our bodies, and that the mind full of fresh, hopeful, happy thought, and of plan, purpose and project, makes and keeps the freshest, strongest and most vigorous body.

Ericsson as alive with work and invention as ever at eighty-four; Gladstone in his seventies running England; De Lesseps canaling and over seventy; Victor Hugo hale and hearty at eighty or thereabouts; Peter Cooper unflagging in mental vigor up to his last moment, when over ninety; Beecher more powerful than ever and has long passed his three score—do not these point to greater future knowledge on this subject.

No need of a man or woman giving up and settling into old age and old ways and becoming "old folks" if the wear and tear of life has carved a few lines on their faces or whitened a few hairs. It's the giving up business that starts them on the down grade fast, stoops the shoulders, weakens the knees and ages the face. What a man or woman think of themselves inside that they soon become and show outside.

Some day not far hence a reputed very wise man will come to the front and show to the world what some already know, to wit: That thought is a substance, with possibilities concerning not mere longevity, but the full retention, if not increase of snap, vigor, vitality in brain and body up to date.

Is everything learned about everything yet? If one-fourth the attention was paid to the study of making stronger bodies and clearer brains that is now given to making money, wouldn't new truths and "big points" soon crop out somewhere? Is the human race at the end of its tether in the getting of knowledge?

Make up your mind to keep fresh. To "make up" your mind will from time to time, and all the time, keep bringing you new ways and means for keeping fresh. Don't live over much in recollection of old times, old associations. That's living in your back brain. That's looking back all the time. Bad practice. Mrs. Lot looked back. Salt. Keep fresh. Look forward. Just as good times in the future as in the past. Better. Sun's as bright to-day as forty years ago. Read Paul, "Forget the things that are behind, and press forward to those that are before." Looking always back is old thought. O. T. makes you old.

Eat live, fresh food. Fresh eggs, fresh vegetables, fresh fruit. Get life in it. Transfers such life to you. No economy in your provision because its cheap. Puts lead in you instead of life. Poisons your blood instead of enriching it. Makes your brain dull. Injures your purse. Bounce salted foods. Can't cheat your stomach that way. Fills up. Mainly with dyspepsia or some form of scurvy.

Live in the present and in all that's going on that you can take in, and also enough in the future to see what's coming. Don't cut off your lives with young people. Don't think you must keep the company of old putterers (who have stopped growing and are dead but don't know it) just because they were born the same year with you. What's experience and wisdom good for if out of it you can't make yourself good company for a man or woman half or even one-third your age?

Wash off your dead skin often. Dead skin is part of your own corpse clinging to you. Body's done its part in throwing off dead matter through the pores. Calls on you to do the rest. Wash it off. Clogged pores, no draft for life's furnace. Life's fire there smoulders. Hence you feel dull, sluggish, old. Skin breathes as well as lungs—or would if it could. One half the world's skins but half work. Result, loss of snap.

Don't keep old things around. Live in the new as much as you can. New houses, new clothes and among the kind of people that are newer every time you see them. Don't keep old clothes after you've worn all the life out of them. They're full of your old emanations. Full, in fact, of your deadness. Fact for future philosopher to build brilliant reputation on. Fact to-day, nevertheless. New clothes bring their own new life.

Can't afford 'em! Makes no difference as to result if you can't. Even snakes have more sense than to crawl back into their old dead skins. But serpents are wise, if they can't wear high-heeled shoes. No snake will wear his coat over a year. Some men wear theirs a dozen—for economy's sake.

Don't hurry about anything. Haste makes more waste of life's force than most of us dream of. Half our brain-softening, paralysis, general debility comes of trying to do from one to four things at once. Trying to make the body do one thing while half or more of the mind is on another. Mind means force. Mind, thought and strength means the same thing. If a poet cuts down a tree the strength he puts in the ax might have written a poem. But he can't write the poem and cut the tree down together. One thing at a time. Don't hurry for anything or anybody.

Colorado Wild Flowers.

[Chicago Times.]

Helen Hunt Jackson is an admirer of the brilliant Colorado wild flowers, and it is said that she has twenty-three varieties of wild-flowers, massed each in its own color, adorned the house of this lady for the edification of some eastern friends invited to luncheon.

The Right to Kick.

[Helen Wilmans in Woman's World.]

Kick! Certainly. Always kick at wrongs or impositions of whatever kind, and without regard to whether yourself individually or the public generally is the recipient of the insult. Why not? Is not a man's right always his right? Kick, but kick like a man, not like a bully.

THE JAPAN PARIS.

SOME OF THE CURIOUS FEATURES OF THE CITY OF KIOTO.

A Walk Through the Principal Thoroughfare—A Chaos of Humanity—A Public Bath-House—Historic Wonders—A Pagan Temple—Beggars.

[San Francisco Bulletin.]

As Osaka has been fitly termed the "Venice of Japan," I should dub Kioto the "Paris of Japan," for it is one of the liveliest and most interesting cities in the mikado's empire. It is known among the Japanese as "Saikio," or the western capital, just as Tokio signifies the eastern capital. Kioto is about the size and population of San Francisco, but lacks an imposing appearance, owing to the absence of large and noble structures, the houses being generally small, wooden and unpainted, varying from one to three stories in height. The streets are regular, and through the central portion of the city runs a small river, from which numerous canals branch off and permeate the remotest suburbs. Kioto is almost walled in by a chain of high mountains, which form a most beautiful little circular vale about ten or twelve miles in diameter.

Gion-machi is the principal thoroughfare, and is full of novel sights and scenes. Before reaching this street we cross a large bridge, which spans a wide river bed, and which in the summer months is completely dry. Both banks are lined with three-storied tea houses, and on warm and sultry evenings the pedestrian will see the whole bed covered with little platforms, upon which sociable parties—mother, fathers and lovers—are whiling away the time in talking, smoking, and drinking saki, the great national beverage, a mild liquor made from rice. The Japanese are a domestic people, and seem to enjoy life in its utmost simplicity.

In the suburbs are numerous tea houses of entertainments, where refreshments (tea cake, rice, etc.,) are daintily served by pretty and coquettish young Jap maidens. All of them are exceedingly polite and modest, and these two traits combined with their pretty faces, make many of them very attractive.

We enter Gion-machi, and are at once in a perfect chaos of humanity. The street is not over twenty-five feet wide, and is thronged with natives rushing in all directions. There are no sidewalks in this country, and consequently everybody promenades in the center of the street. Jinrichshas, a two-wheeled, conveyance drawn by one man, roll about hither and thither, their owners shouting unintelligible words to clear the way. A foreigner dwells in constant fear of being run down by one of these vehicles, but the Japs don't seem to worry about it in the least. As we pass along there seems to be an unceasing round of gayety and activity in one form or another. Theatres? Any number. Why the whole street seems to contain nothing else but theaters, jugglers, monkey shows, fortune tellers, bow and arrow shops, and all varieties of amusement. The Japanese jugglers are famous the world over, and I saw several marvelous feats of deception and legerdemain. Osaka, however, is most noted for these performers.

At the upper end of the street we notice large volumes of smoke emanating from a small wooden building, and as we draw near the incessant chatter of voices from the interior salute our ears. Curiosity prompts us to peep within. Admittance is easily obtained, for we have have only to slide back the half-open door and slip in. Lo and behold, it is a public bath house! A large wooden tank, filled with steaming hot water, some three or four feet deep occupies about half of the room, and disporting and bathing in various sections are some eighteen or twenty Japanese of both sexes. Bathing costumes in Japan, if not unknown, are at least looked upon as an entirely unnecessary article, and undoubtedly a native would go crazy in trying to find out what they were used for. These customs, however shocking they may be to foreigners for the first time, are carried out by the Japanese without the slightest sense of impropriety; and the fact that they are customs which have been in vogue for hundreds of years, approved of by their pagan religion and sanctioned by the imperial government, is enough to satisfy any of Japan's fair sons and daughters that they act once both right and proper.

Let us ramble among the historic wonders of Kioto. We jump into a jinrichsha, and in fifteen minutes are deposited at the huge gateway approaching the pagan temple of Gion, the most popular one among the Japanese. The Sammon, or great gate, is an imposing structure by itself, being some thirty-five feet in height, of expensive wood, exquisitely carved to represent chrysanthemums and lotus flowers, gilded and painted in various colors. The temple is of carved wood, and is about sixty feet wide and eighty feet long. In the interior, where we are permitted to go after first removing our shoes, are several large and gilded images, representing heathen deities, before which we observe idolaters of all ages kneeling reverently and uttering weird prayers, seemingly undisturbed by our unfeeling presence. The walls and ceilings are artistically ornamented with pictures of poets, sculptors and many unique floral designs.

The temple of San Jin San Gondo is a singular place. It is a long, low building, containing 33,333 gilded images. In the center of the building is a monster idol called the 1,000-handed Kwanon, and he is certainly well represented, for hands seem to be attached to his body on all portions. In front of him are a large group of followers, and 500 life-sized images on each side, ranged in tiers. Each idol is abundantly supplied with hands and with other diminutive idols, so that all counted together aggregate the marvelous number of 33,333.

It is queer what numbers of beggars, quacks and petty dealers frequent the public places in Japan. Often at the entrances of temples I have been importuned by a half dozen miserable looking objects to give them a few sen, and always pursued the policy of remaining obdurate when too many were about, knowing that a few cents scattered among them would bring a perfect swarm. They will resort to most any device to excite your sympathy and pity. I have frequently had occasion to witness the revolting spectacle of leprous and diseased persons groveling in the dust to solicit your charity, but thankfully they are kept within certain limits and are easily avoided.

In Keeping with the Mountains.

[Boston Letter.]

In a Washington street window are five pairs of shoes which look as if they had been made for as many giants. They are thirteen inches long by five inches wide, and are manufactured of stout pebble-grain leather. The order for them came from Nashville, Tenn., and they are said to be intended for a mother and four daughters. They would be in keeping with the Tennessee mountains, and a large romance could be constructed round them by a genius like Charles Egbert Craddock.

An Invulnerable Ointment.

[Chicago Herald.]

An armor for those who fear assaults from vitriol throwers has been invented by a French chemist. It is in the form of a collodion ointment, which forms an invulnerable glazing when spread over the face.

A Week's Work for Nothing.

[Chicago Herald.]

The employes of a large iron manufacturing firm at Tinsley, near Sheffield, England, recently offered to work a week for nothing in order that the firm might recover from its financial embarrassment.

Helen Wilmans: The great genius is but the world's spokesman. What he says all people are longing to say, but cannot formulate their crude ideas into words.

Hardened Liver.

Five years ago I broke down with kidney and liver complaint and rheumatism. Since then I have been unable to be about at all. My liver became hard like wood; my limbs were puffed up and filled with water.

All the best physicians agreed that nothing could cure me. I resolved to try Hop Bitters: I have used seven bottles; the hardness has all gone from my liver, the swelling from my limbs, and it has worked a miracle in my case; otherwise I would have been now in my grave.

Poverty and Suffering.

I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring.

I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I commenced using Hop Bitters, and in one month we were all well, and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost. I know it. —A WORKINGMAN.

CITY AND PROVINCE.

—Track laying will commence at Esquimalt about the 1st of August.

—Cabmen and reporters do not bother the wharfinger when the Sound boat arrives as much as formerly. Five and six o'clock in the morning is too early for their delicate constitutions.

—C. D. Rand has resumed business and has taken an office on Bastion street over Dr. Chipp's where he will carry on business as a real estate broker and insurance agent.

—The sum of $50,000 was placed in the supplementary estimates for surveys in the Northwest and British Columbia; also $550,100 for the Canadian Pacific railway.

—To-day engineers were employed surveying a line for the Island railway in the vicinity of the gas works. If the terminus were located in that part of the city it will be very convenient for the general public.

—Chief Justice Begbie left Farwell yesterday, accompanied by Deputy Attorney-General Irving, going down the Columbia river and then via the N. P. to Portland. They are expected home in a few days.

—Canadian Pacific stock is now considered a safe investment and is being enquired for. In New York, on the 11th and 13th inst., it was quoted firm at 42¼ and rapidly advanced to 45, an advance of 3¼ in a few days, at which figures 900 shares were sold.

—The Olympian brought freight for Marvin & T. Fell & Co, T Earle, H Saunders, S Clay, Carne & M, J Wilson, Johnson & Co, S Leiser, M W Waitt, H Mansell, Neufelder & Ross, A Bossi & Co, W Tinson, M Searle, Wells Fargo & Co, S J Pitts, Geo Vienna, Welch R & Co, Burns & Co, A Cowan, J Sehl, E G Prior, A Cowan, King Tye & Co, A B Francis, P McQuade & Son, J Seers, R Lettice, & Ofner.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Major Downie is in the city.

D S Walker, Dungeness is registered at the Occidental.

A W Mitchell, Cadellac, Mich.; Mrs D K Howe, Seabeck; S Laxter, Seattle, are at the Driard.

Mr. W. H. Ellis, of the Colonist staff, left for the Mainland this morning on a pleasure trip.

Steamer Olympian brought the following passengers: S Macey, L J Higgins, C Partridge, J Hume, J Brady, W Mosely, Miss Burke, C Clark, L T Emont, R Ellis, A Creamer and wife, R Carter, K Kusters, N Douglas, D S Walker, L Minot, Mrs E Haffenden, Miss DeClark, C Vogel, Miss Macey, Miss Collins, J McMahon, W Link, Mrs Taib, Mrs Clancey, M Shaner, S Kriedel, A Muse, J Robertson, J Wilson, C Jamieson, Mrs O'Brien, C Lowson, G H Barnard, Mrs Hallenback, P O Schison, Wm Burns, M Mitchell, G T Wells, wife and daughter, S Baxter, Mrs Howard.

MARINE NOTES.

The Idaho arrived from the Sound this morning at 5:30 and left again at 12 o'clock for San Francisco.

The Olympian arrived at 4:30 this morning, and left again at 10 a. m.

The steamer Phantom will be brought from Seattle to Victoria on Saturday to be sold.

The Pilot, with Messrs. Dunsmuir and Hunter on board, went to Oyster Bay to-day.

The Royal Sovereign will finish loading at Port Moody on Saturday. She goes to Calcutta.

The Daisy goes to Comox to-morrow morning.

Convicted out of its own Mouth.

According to the Colonist's own showing in yesterday morning's issue, the statutes of this year have been kept from the public by the government very much longer than has been the case in the years named by its organ. We give below the dates of the ending of each session of the Legislative Assembly, and the dates of acknowledgment by the press of the receipt of the bound statutes, by which any school boy, acquainted with the rule of subtraction, can at once prove that the time elapsing between those dates is this year unduly long:

ENDING OF SESSION.	RECEIPT OF STATUTES.
1880....8th May	10th July
1881....25th March	31st May
1882....21st April	4th July
1883....12th May	22nd July
1884....18th Feb	6th June
1885....9th March....(not issued)	22nd July

From the foregoing it will be seen that the greatest length of time which elapsed between the ending of the sessions mentioned and the appearance of the bound statutes, was 2 months and 16 days which occured last year; but this year FOUR MONTHS AND FOURTEEN DAYS have gone by since the session ended and the bound statutes have not yet been received from the government offices. Does this character of dilatoriness on the part of the authorities require any comment? We think not, further than that they have been derelict in their duty to the country.

The Drinking Fountain.

Complaints are made about the state in which the new drinking fountain has been left. It has been erected, but as yet has not been fenced in, nor in any way protected. It has been broken and otherwise defaced. As both the fountain and the land were donated to the city and an appropriation voted for its erection, the proper authorities should see that the fountain is protected and made serviceable.

A Pleasant Party.

W. Wilson, of A. & W. Wilson, gave a very delightful party to a few of his friends at his residence on Saturday night last. A most sumptuous repast was spread to which the guests did full honor, after which reading, recitations, instrumental and vocal music were indulged in, and the merry party then took their leave, wishing that the shadow of their host might never grow less.

The Ribbs Case.

The case against Ribbs, the absconding Lewiston postmaster, was called in the Supreme Court to-day. A telegram was read stating that witnesses for the United States government had left Washington on the 15th inst., and Mr. Walls was of the opinion that they would arrive in Victoria on Saturday. A remand was asked for until Monday next, which was granted.

Gone to San Francisco.

The Idaho left for San Francisco at noon, carrying the following passengers from Victoria: Rev J B Hartwell, Arthur T Thane, Miss F Dickinson, J B Carr and wife, Thos Scott and son, P Idelman, P Fry and wife. The steerage passengers numbered thirty-five.

The Marquis of Lorne, in a speech before the Radical Club at Kilburn, declared that if he had his own way he would put Mr. Parnell in the Cabinet.

"Leaders of Men."

The audience in the Methodist church last night, although not as numerous as might be expected in a city containing so large a percentage of educated men and women, was nevertheless a fairly respectable one in numbers and representative in point of intelligence. Rev. Mr. Watson occupied the chair, and, after a hymn had been sung and prayer offered, introduced the lecturer, Rev. Dr. Sutherland. The speaker went directly to the subject, and, without calling biography to his aid, or reverting more than incidentally to the foot-prints of the leaders of the past or present, passed in rapid review the several domains in which true leaders of men are required to ennoble and exalt the human race. The marvellous inventions of the present century were more far-reaching in their results than all that had ever preceded them, excepting perhaps the printing press and the mariner's compass. Leaders were required to carry on these improvements to their fullest possible development. The dishonesty prevalent in the commercial world was laid bare and condemned in scathing words. The great need of the age was men who would conduct all their business affairs in a strictly honest and honorable manner. In political affairs and in intellectual pursuits leaders were wanted to guide the people aright and to raise them steadily to a higher level. During the last half century mighty changes have taken place in the political complexion of Europe —feudalism and serfdom had been banished, France had been made a Republic, Spain had banished her Queen, and who could tell what would take place in the next fifty years. But with this progression, there were dangers; socialism and nihilism had many adherents and leaders were needed to guide the nations through the troublous times to greater peace and security. Men of one idea, who concentrated all their powers to one end, were the men who had accomplished great things in the past. Purpose and effort would succeed at last and against all obstacles. In the formation of character it was the great privilege of women by the home training of youth, to mould the minds and characters of the leaders of the future. The lecturer in closing a brilliant lecture, quoted the beautiful lines:

Chisel in hand stood a sculptor boy,
With his marble block before him—
And his face lit up with a smile of joy
As an angel dream passed o'er him.
He carved that dream on the yielding stone
With many a sharp incision;
In Heaven's own light the sculptor shone
He had caught that angel vision.

Sculptors of life are we, as we stand,
With our lives unearned before us;
Waiting the hour when at God's command,
Our life-dream passes o'er us.
Let us carve it then on the yielding stone,
With many a sharp incision—
Its heavenly beauty shall be our own—
Our lives, that angel vision.

The lecture was frequently applauded. A synopsis can only do him injustice, as it is impossible to give more than the drift of the argument. There were many beautiful thoughts, expressed in eloquent words and with glowing imagery. And yet it was plain and practical and within the comprehension of every listener, and barried conviction to every mind. A unanimous vote of thanks, moved by Revs. Pollard and Percival, was tendered the Rev. lecturer, and the audience then dispersed.

The New Theater Comique.

If the patronage extended to the management of the above theater on its opening night is any criterion, its success is assured. A large and appreciative audience assembled last evening to witness the opening performance, which ran very smoothly throughout, the abilities of the several artists being of a very fair order of merit. The opening piece, a farce entitled "The Secret," was well rendered. Miss Bertie Hastings, the double voiced vocalist, and the Pierces, John and Kitty, caught right on with the audience, while the Mozarts, Ed. and Georgie, in their Dutch comicalities fairly brought down the house, and were forced to respond to several encores. The Fairfields, George and Sadie, in their character changes were excellent, while their double clog was perhaps better than anything which has been attempted here before. Mr. John Pierce, who did very well in the farce, made a multi of his darkey impersonations, and could probably try some other line with advantage. Miss Bertie Hastings sang the English ballad "At the Ferry" very prettily. Miss Georgie Mozart captured the audience with her skipping rope dances, and was rapturously encored. The performance was brought to a close with an exhibition of fire eating and mesmerism by Professor Mortimer, which afforded the audience much amusement. Everything was conducted in a strictly first-class and orderly manner.

Killing a Negro.

When at Beaver, Judge Begbie tried a white man who shot a negro. The prisoner had interfered and stopped a row in which the negro would have got the worst of it, and that ingrate turned upon him with a razor, when the white man fired and killed him. The prisoner was acquitted, as the act was proved to have been justifiable.

THE W. C. T. UNION.

Third Annual Meeting—Delegates from the Provincial Unions.

At 10 o'clock this morning (Wednesday) the first session of the third annual convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was opened in Temperance Hall, Pandora street.

The meeting was opened with singing, prayer and the reading of Scripture.

The following delegates were in attendance: New Westminster, Mrs. Cunningham and Miss McDougall; Maple Ridge, Mrs. Seccombe; Chilliwack, Mrs. Wells, Mrs. McCutcheon and Miss White; Nanaimo, Miss Godby, Mrs. Abrams and Miss Brown, and ten delegates from Victoria and a number of visitors.

Bible reading was conducted by Mrs. Cunningham, New Westminster, who also made a few appropriate remarks.

In the absence of the president, Miss Lazenby presided over the meeting.

Miss Pollard read a short address of welcome to the visiting delegates, to which Miss White, Chilliwhack, briefly responded on behalf of those present.

Mrs. Spofford, Mrs. Williams, Miss White and Mrs. McNaughten were appointed as nominating committee.

The minutes of the several meetings of the executive committee held during the past year was read by the secretary.

The nominating committee presented their report which was adopted.

Mrs. Jenkins, corresponding secretary, presented her annual report. Three unions had been organized in the province, and eight Band of Hope Lodges. The six unions have 229 members, and held 127 union meetings and 54 public meetings during the year. Several public lectures had been held. The work of the W.W.C.T.U. was referred to with much praise. The New Westminster Union had 19 members and 11 honorary members. Chilliwhack has 15 active and 25 honorary; Nanaimo, 37 active and 38 honorary members; Burrard Inlet, 14 members. Y. W. C. T. U., Victoria, has held 28 social meetings with an average attendance of from 150 to 200, and has a membership of 236.

The report was unanimously adopted.

At 12 o'clock an adjournment was taken until 2 o'clock, and visitors were entertained at lunch by the Victoria members.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Meeting opened at 2 o'clock with singing and prayer.

Minutes of the forenoon session were read and on motion were adopted.

Mrs. Williams then read the treasurer's report, showing receipts, $186.55; expenditures, $146.17; cash on hand, $40.38. On motion the report was adopted.

Mrs. Cunningham gave a verbal report of the progress of the work on the mainland. Organizations had been effected at Maple Ridge and Granville during the year.

Mrs. McCutcheon of Chilliwhack read an interesting report on that locality. Reference was made to the granting of a license against the wishes of the people, but the renewal was very properly refused. Four Band of Hope lodges had been organized.

Mrs. Spofford made a few remarks, expressing her pleasure in hearing of the organization of Bands of Hope. She thought the young should be taught temperance truths.

Miss White, of Surrey, reported on the working of the Band of Hope there. There was a membership of 35 or 40.

Mr. Sargison, being called for, expressed his pleasure in the meetings of the union, and his hopes for the success of the objects in view.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Seccombe for their efforts in the temperance cause in the Maple Ridge section.

Mrs. McNaughton, president of the Victoria branch of the Union, addressed the convention by request.

Some discussion took place on the question of the members subscribing for the "Union Signal," the organ of the society, some favoring the appointment of an agent for each branch of the society, others wishing to appoint one agent for the whole province.

A long communication was read from the Anti-Chinese Union, asking for assistance in subduing the Chinese evil.
